ABOUT STRATUM

Stratum has spent three decades engineering environments that hold value — physically, financially, culturally. Every project is a singular act of intention. Not a development. A decision. Āvāsa is the first residential expression of that discipline: twelve villas in Jubilee Hills, designed to an absolute standard and built to exactly that.

BRAND ARCHITECTURE

35 YEARS | 10M+ SQ FT | COMMERCIAL TRACK RECORD | RESIDENTIAL DEBUT

JUBILEE HILLS | 12 VILLAS ONLY | NO PHASE TWO

THE CONCEPT

Come Home to Nothing Else.

12

Void black ground, raw ivory breath, burnished copper as the single warmth.
The palette of things built to be inherited.

SCALE

Not selling units. Curating a community. Twelve villas. Not a phase one — the whole project, permanently complete.

SERVICE

Permanent estate team. Concierge per family. Contractual — ten years post-possession. The service is the product.

PERMANENCE

No phase two. No adjacent plot. The twelve-villa structure makes expansion architecturally impossible.

MATERIALS

No substitution after design approval. Designed to a standard — then built to it. What you see is what you receive.

LEGACY

The twelve founding families become the permanent character of this address. Governed and covenanted to last.

LOGOMARK

Ā

Initial mark — geometric, inscriptional, scale-invariant. Works embossed, engraved, or reversed on any surface.

LOGO RULES

> Never set the mark smaller than 16pt on any surface — it certifies, not decorates.

> Clear space equals the full cap-height on all four sides. No exceptions.

> Use primary palette only — never on a gradient, pattern, or photographic ground.

Three Worlds Within One

01

The Void Pool

A zero-edge pool of flamed granite, flush with the garden plane. Water temperature held at skin-warmth by dusk. The horizon is the only visible edge. One lounger. No others. Belonging entirely to one family.

02

The Still Garden

A walled private garden of 4,000 sq ft. Dry-stone paths, copper water feature, mature rain trees. A resident horticulturalist tends it. Nothing here was planted for colour — only for presence and permanence.

03

The Contemplation Hall

Below grade, below sound. Basalt walls, underfloor warmth, a single skylight ten feet overhead. Designed for silence first — meditation, reading, or the specific luxury of doing nothing at all.

EXCLUSIVITY

No shared walls. No shared lobbies. No shared anything.

Every villa is a free-standing structure. Each owner's relationship with the community is voluntary, not architectural.

INTERIOR

Materials specified. Materials delivered.

Every surface, fixture, and fitting is named in the agreement. No substitutions, no compromises. What the drawing promised is what possession delivers.

OUTDOORS

A private garden. A private pool. A private sky.

Each villa owns its outdoor space outright. Landscape design is bespoke — handled by the project's retained design team at the buyer's direction.

PERMANENCE

The community is the twenty-fourth resident.

12 owners define the community forever. The estate management team ensures it stays exactly as designed — from day one through decade three.

FIVE BRAND CLAIMS

What Āvāsa Does Not Share With Anyone

01

SCALE

"We are not in the business of selling units. We are curating a community."

Twelve villas. Not a phase one. The complete project. Where competitors count floors, Āvāsa counts families.

02

SERVICE

"We have retained an estate team, contractually, for ten years post-possession."

Not outsourced to whoever wins the next contract. Permanent. Named. Accountable to the twelve families — no one else.

03

PERMANENCE

"There is no phase two. The structure makes expansion architecturally impossible."

Your investment cannot be diluted by a second phase. Your address cannot change by what gets built next door. Structurally protected.

04

MATERIALS

"No material substitution is permitted after design approval."

What you see in the show apartment is what you receive on possession. Zero substitution. Contractual. Unconditional. Written in the sale deed.

05

LEGACY

"The twelve families who take possession become the permanent character of this address."

The project is governed and covenanted to preserve that character across generations. Not a home. A founding position.

Three Creative Languages

01

Void

The primary register. The first impression of Āvāsa — immediate, unhurried, decided. Every visual choice earns this feeling without announcing it.

02

Permanence

The material mood. Grounded in place and stone and time. Āvāsa does not abstract away from the physical world — it celebrates the finest version of it.

03

Copper warmth

The underlying register. Āvāsa does not say what it is — it is known to those who know. This mood is for the collector who needs no introduction.
