ABOUT TERRA

Terra is rooted. We build with the material culture of this land — the stone, the clay, the timber — elevated to an international standard. Heritage is not nostalgia. It is architecture. Vihāra is Terra's most resolved project: twelve villas in Jubilee Hills where the Deccan plateau is both the inspiration and the material palette.

BRAND ARCHITECTURE

- 35 YEARS
- 10M+ SQ FT
- COMMERCIAL TRACK RECORD
- RESIDENTIAL DEBUT
- JUBILEE HILLS
- 12 VILLAS ONLY
- NO PHASE TWO

THE CONCEPT

Retreat Into Permanence.

12

Deep terracotta ground, sun-bleached ivory light, aged bronze accent. The palette of Deccan stone walls, handmade clay tile, and the warmth of afternoon light through old timber screens.

SCALE

Not selling units. Curating a community. Twelve villas. Not a phase one — the whole project, permanently complete.

SERVICE

Permanent estate team. Concierge per family. Contractual — ten years post-possession. The service is the product.

PERMANENCE

No phase two. No adjacent plot. The twelve-villa structure makes expansion architecturally impossible.

MATERIALS

No substitution after design approval. Designed to a standard — then built to it. What you see is what you receive.

LEGACY

The twelve founding families become the permanent character of this address. Governed and covenanted to last.

LOGOMARK

V

Initial mark — geometric, inscriptional, scale-invariant. Works embossed, engraved, or reversed on any surface.

LOGO RULES

> The mark is always applied to natural materials — embossed in clay, stamped in wax, pressed into handmade paper. Digital use is secondary.

> Never smaller than 16pt in any application — the mark has the weight of a seal, not a signature.

> The mark is always warm-toned — never in cool black or silver, which are foreign to the brand's material register.

Three Worlds Within One

01

The Courtyard Garden

A traditional Deccan-style walled courtyard of handmade Athangudi tile, a central water feature of polished Kota stone, and mature neem canopy. Designed after the interior gardens of the great havelis — private, shaded, and entirely still.

02

The Heritage Pool

A stepped-edge pool of local Shahabad stone, recalling the architecture of the region's ancient tank tradition. Water at ambient garden temperature. Surrounded by handmade terracotta planters and mature fig. Nothing here was shipped from outside a 200-kilometre radius.

03

The Retreat Library

A library of hand-hewn timber shelves, raw lime-plaster walls, and cotton dhurrie flooring. A collection of Indian literature, architectural history, and world philosophy — 400 volumes chosen by a literary curator. A reading room that smells of beeswax and old paper. No screens.

THREE-FLOOR CONFIGURATION

EXCLUSIVITY

No shared walls. No shared lobbies. No shared anything.

Every villa is a free-standing structure. Each owner's relationship with the community is voluntary, not architectural.

INTERIOR

Materials specified. Materials delivered.

Every surface, fixture, and fitting is named in the agreement. No substitutions, no compromises. What the drawing promised is what possession delivers.

OUTDOORS

A private garden. A private pool. A private sky.

Each villa owns its outdoor space outright. Landscape design is bespoke — handled by the project's retained design team at the buyer's direction.

PERMANENCE

The community is the twenty-fourth resident.

12 owners define the community forever. The estate management team ensures it stays exactly as designed — from day one through decade three.

FIVE BRAND CLAIMS

What Vihāra Does Not Share With Anyone

01

SCALE

"We are not in the business of selling units. We are curating a community."

Twelve villas. Not a phase one. The complete project. Where competitors count floors, Vihāra counts families.

02

SERVICE

"We have retained an estate team, contractually, for ten years post-possession."

Not outsourced to whoever wins the next contract. Permanent. Named. Accountable to the twelve families — no one else.

03

PERMANENCE

"There is no phase two. The structure makes expansion architecturally impossible."

Your investment cannot be diluted by a second phase. Your address cannot change by what gets built next door. Structurally protected.

04

MATERIALS

"No material substitution is permitted after design approval."

What you see in the show apartment is what you receive on possession. Zero substitution. Contractual. Unconditional. Written in the sale deed.

05

LEGACY

"The twelve families who take possession become the permanent character of this address."

The project is governed and covenanted to preserve that character across generations. Not a home. A founding position.

Three Creative Languages

01

Heritage

The primary register. The first impression of Vihāra — immediate, unhurried, decided. Every visual choice earns this feeling without announcing it.

02

Earth

The material mood. Grounded in place and stone and time. Vihāra does not abstract away from the physical world — it celebrates the finest version of it.

03

Bronze warmth

The underlying register. Vihāra does not say what it is — it is known to those who know. This mood is for the collector who needs no introduction.
